By ELLIS CUEVAS
The Mississippi State Employment Service has many applicants on file for job placements according to Kenneth Moles, employment representative. In an interview Moles said, "Our job is to serve the employer and public. Employers needing help need only to give us a call, and our service is free." Hancock now has air rescue capabilities

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
Hancock County now has the assistance of a Louisiana air search and rescue team, Hancock County Sheriff Ronald A. Peterson reports.

Several members of the Terrebonne Parish Sheriff's Flying Posse, a volunteer group consisting of male pilots of the oil industry there and their wives, recently visited Hancock as the group's annual weekend vacation.

Bill Griffith of Houma, La., a posse member and former Bay St. Louis resident, explained the group vacation spot is always in the Deep South and they meet with local law enforcement agencies to share ideas or services.

Peterson said he, Ed Friloux, Diamondhead Fire Department fire rescue administrator, head of the Diamondhead Dive Rescue Squad and Hancock Arson Investigation Squad member; and Reginald Fayard, a member of aforementioned organizations, met informally at the posse's shrimp boil at Buccaneer State Park in Waveland to share experiences, fellowship and ideas regarding various rescue situations.

"They assured us that whenever we need an airplane for a search and rescue emergency they will provide one," the sheriff stated.

Peterson said Hancock would pay for the posse's fuel expenses if they respond here for an emergency.

He noted it would take about 30 minutes for a posse member to travel by plane to Hancock from Houma where all the group members live and are based.

"We discussed problems in our county and their parish. They have similar problems with people getting stranded in the marshes," the sheriff stated.

"But they have more access to sophisticated equipment than we do," he added.

He noted the group can provide Hancock the use of an air transported directional finder which homes in on an emergency landing transmitter carried in the tail section of every aircraft.

Griffith explained the ELT automatically transmits at 125.5 megahertz in the event of a rough landing or crash.

He also reported that several group members are skydivers who can parachute to a remote areas to administer first aid.

The sheriff said the group members were shocked by the number of drownings occurring in Hancock particularly the amount of deaths experienced before the deadly underwater deep hole offshore from Waveland was filled.

Several group members recounted emergency rescue operations which have ranged from bloody oil industry aircraft crashes and stranded fishermen suffering from severe exposure to the reported missing sportsman only to be discovered inebriated at the local watering hole or with a favorite mistress.

Griffith reported the group frequently conducts turkey shoots, raffles and other events to help finance their volunteer operation or other local charities.

He said the pilot's wives are active and essential group members who assist with ground or air to ground communications in emergencies.

Peterson said the flying posse offered to provide Hancock with any equipment or manpower available in the event of an emergency.

"It's good to make contacts like that because you never know when you might need help," the sheriff stated.

"This expands our water search and rescue capabilities tremendously," Peterson added.

Don Calhoun is commander of the flying posse.

Hancock landowners group seeking membership rebuild

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
The re-organized Hancock County Landowners Association is attempting to rebuild its membership.

Some 25 people gathered Tuesday night at the Annunciation Catholic School gymnasium in Kiln to elect officers and discuss objectives of the Mississippi Landowners Association and its present eight affiliate county chapters.

Previous Hancock meetings drew 50 to 75 people.

Elected as officers are Louis J. Breaux IV of Kiln as president, William Jackson of Clermont Harbor as vice president and Dorothy Campanali of the Catahoula Community as temporary secretary.

Breaux requested and the group approved tabling election of a treasurer because C.J. Lee of Leetown, former secretary-treasurer of the group, was not able to attend the meeting, but was interested in the new post.

Felix Famularo of the Bienville Community was elected vice-president, but walked out of the meeting after Breaux reported the re-organized group membership requires that each member pay a $5 annual membership fee and one-time $1 fee for each surface acre they own severed from mineral ownership.

Famularo noted the previous Hancock chapter voted not to include the $1-per-non-mineral acre fee requirement in the by-laws and said that the group would be "crooked" to impose such a rule.

But Breaux and Jim Liddell of Jackson, executive director of the Mississippi Landowners Association, reported the one-time fee is now necessary to support efforts of the local and state organizations.

Shooting victim files $2.5 million damage suit in Federal Court

A Waveland woman who pleaded guilty in Hancock Circuit Court to charges she shot a man in the face has been named in a $2.5 million federal suit filed by the man.

Cynthia Rainey received a 15-year suspended sentence with five years' probation from Judge James Thomas, who also ordered that she pay restitution, the amount to be determined by the outcome of the federal suit.

Besides Miss Rainey, defendants in the federal case were Robert Henley and Lester Haverly, proprietors of The Reflections Lounge, Miss Rainey's employers at the time of the shooting, which took place in front of the lounge. Recently Henley and Haverly were removed from the case after making an undisclosed settlement.

The proprietors were charged with "hiring an employee which (they) knew or should have known was irresponsible, failed to meet the (legal) requirements for employees of establishments serving alcoholic beverages, and would endanger the lives and safety of customers," as well as failure to protect their customers.

According to arrest reports, Miss Rainey, 34, was waiting for her boyfriend, Jim Blue, outside the lounge about 3 a.m. on Dec. 18, with a .30-gauge shotgun.

When he emerged, she fired the gun, missed Blue but shot Terrance Alvarado who was behind him.

Alvarado's suit charges that as a result of the shooting, he sustained "severe and permanent personal injuries and other damages including but not limited to total and permanent loss of sight in one eye, impairment of sight in the remaining eye, brain injuries, facial disfigurement, loss of teeth on the left side of the face, presence of more than 70 shotgun pellets across the face, neck and chest, two shotgun pellets in the brain, continuing and permanent threat of fatal seizure, pain, suffering and mental anguish, past, present and future, permanent loss of earning capacity, substantial medical

The suit asks $2.5 million plus interest costs and a trial by jury.

Action taken to secure Waveland day care facility

The Waveland Board of Aldermen has agreed to provide necessary matching funds to establish a child day care program at the Civic Center on Coleman Avenue.

The Board has voted to match a federal Title XX grant with a $28,877 in-kind contribution.

The city will also spend about $35,000 to renovate the Civic Center before the day care center opens in April, said Mayor John Longo Jr.

The promise of 25 percent local matching funds was necessary before the application for federal funding could be made, according to Eunice McGlory, executive director of Southern Mississippi Human Resource Agency, an adjunct of Southern Mississippi Planning and Development District, administrators of the project. Title XX is a federal program of grants to states for social services to low-income people.

The day care program will serve up to 48 Hancock County children of low-income working parents referred by the county Welfare Department, with priority given first to children who are abused and neglected, then those from one-parent families and finally to those from two-parent families, said Jane Baumgartner, director of Hancock County Child Development Centers, which includes the Bay St. Louis facility and the projected Waveland center.

Parents who can afford to pay will be charged up to $50 a month tuition, according to their income, she said.

Most of Waveland's contribution to the $89,771 project—a janitor, maintenance supplies, playground equipment, furnishings and pest control—are items already budgeted for upkeep of the Civic Center, said Longo. However, the city also agreed to furnish utilities for the first six months of the program's operation.

Renovation of the Civic Center, including re-roofing, painting, carpeting and structural repairs, is now feasible because the building will be in use fulltime, said Longo.

This should lessen the amount of vandalism, he feels.

Power line right-of-way option approved by supers

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors Monday approved an option to lease some 50 acres of 18th Section land and lieu lands in the northern area of the county to Mississippi Power Company for a high-voltage line right-of-way.

The land, consisting of a 200-foot strip through three sections, would become a part of the power company's 77-mile route through Mississippi from Plant Daniel in Jackson County to the Louisiana border for construction of a 500,000 volt line.

Plans of the company to acquire property through eminent domain—purchasing land against the wishes of owners—were challenged successfully in the courts in Pearl River and Hancock counties, and company officials announced their intentions to negotiate new routes through the state.

On Sept. 6, the Hancock County School District approved an option to the power company for a strip through one section at the rate of $4,000 per acre or an amount equal to the highest sum paid any landowner.

On Monday, the area through the lieu lands was added to the option, and the price approved was $7,600 per acre, but that could change if greater amounts are paid for other land in the region.

While the board agreed on the financial arrangements, the length of time the lease would run is still to be negotiated, said Superintendent Terry Randolph.

The land under the option to Mississippi Power is in the county's timber management program, earning income for the school district through the sale of wood.

Sixteenth Section lands are those set aside in the early 19th century to earn money for the support of public schools.

They may be leased or otherwise used for the benefit of schools but not sold.

Lieu lands are those in trust to county school districts in place of 16th section lands that were either disposed of by the state or awarded to compensate for the lack of a 16th section in an area such as a coastline.

Troopers to patrol

The Highway Patrol will conduct operations between 1 a.m. and 6 a.m. sporadically throughout the state, Col. Donald Butler, patrol chief, has announced.

Manpower and budget considerations have prevented an early morning patrol for several years, a fact that was widely publicized recently following State Budget Commission hearings.

"For obvious reasons, we have not advertised the fact that our troopers were not assigned to regular patrols during these hours," Butler said.

"Now that this difficulty has become public knowledge, we feel it necessary to swap schedules around to provide periodic 24-hour patrolling," he said.

Butler said the 24-hour schedule will not be in effect in all parts of the state at the same time and that these schedule changes will not be in effect every day.

Commanders in each of the Highway Patrol's nine districts have been ordered to develop special schedules which will allow for periodic 24-hour patrols.

Butler said early morning patrols conducted in the Brookhaven District since the Budget Commission hearings have resulted in the capture and arrest of a man believed to be involved in an attempted murder and robbery and, in an unrelated matter, the seizure of 81 pounds of marijuana being transported through the state. Two men have been charged in connection with the marijuana seizure.

"We know that the belief that the Highway Patrol was not operating during the hours of 1 a.m. and 6 a.m. was a temptation for individuals engaged in criminal activity."

"We believe that the knowledge that we will be periodically patrolling during those hours will create apprehension among any would-be violators and will give the motoring public a sense of security and confidence that the Highway Patrol is on duty," Butler said.

GUMBO FESTIVAL—The Annual Gumbo Festival at Nécaille Crossing will be held Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. Charly McLain, Country Music Star will be among the many entertainers at the Gumbo Festival and is scheduled for two shows on Sunday. Other entertainers over the three day period include Faron Young, Razzy Bailey, Ronnie McDowell, and Jean Shepard. The festival's site is on Highway 603 North of Kiln. Gumbo eating contests will be among the many events of the festival.

Coroner rules suicide in Lakeshore death

Suicide is ruled as the cause of death of a Lakeshore woman.

Sheriff Ronald A. Peterson said Tuesday that Hancock County Coroner Carl Banderet determined Denise C. Miller, 22, of Fricke Road in Lakeshore died Sept. 18 as the result of a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

Investigator Delbert Seay of the Hancock Sheriff's Department said Tuesday that Miller apparently shot herself through the mouth at about 3:15 p.m. with a .38 caliber derringer.

He reported Miller's body found on the bathroom of the home after her husband and family awoke from an afternoon nap after hearing the gun report which they thought was a car backfire.

The woman was in the Navy and worked at its New Orleans computer center, Seay added.

POLICE STILL MUM Chief Douglas Williams of the Bay St. Louis Police Department said Wednesday he will later today release information regarding the Sept. 22 death of a Bay woman.

A police spokesman said Saturday that the chief would not release any information until Monday regarding the death of Norma B. Favre, 41, of 207 Victoria St.

Beezy Schaefer is a radiologic technologist in the x-ray department here at Hancock General. She graduated from the Charity School of Radiologic Technology in New Orleans, and is a member of the American Registry of Radiologic Technologists. She has been here at Hancock General for four years, working previously in an orthopedic clinic in Gulfport, Memorial Hospital at Gulfport and Garden Park Hospital in Gulfport. Beezy and her husband, Richard, reside in Bay St. Louis with their two children. As a radiologic technologist, Beezy and the other members of the x-ray department provide 24-hour a day, seven day a week diagnostic and fluoroscopic examinations under the directorship of radiologists Drs. Frank Schmidt, A.K. Martinovich, H. Barrett and Laura Sauls. The x-ray department recently opened a new radiographic and fluoroscopic room, which has an image intensifier with television and tomographic capabilities. This new equipment decreases the amount of radiation exposure to patients and employees, along with prolonging the life of the equipment itself. These services, and the many others performed every day by the x-ray department, are one more way Hancock General your community hospital that cares, continues to strive to provide the people of the area with the best in patient and health care. RE-ELECT BERT COURREGE SUPERVISOR DISTRICT 1 TUESDAY, OCT. 4

I would like to thank each of the voters of District 1 for your support in the past Democratic Primaries.

OUR FREEDOM TO VOTE CAN ONLY BE PROTECTED BY VOTING!

Our total future depends on our decisions at the voting polls. For this reason, I would encourage each of you to carefully weigh the qualifications and experiences of each candidate when you vote.

MY QUALIFICATIONS FOR SUPERVISOR ARE:

- *Family man with four lovely children
- *Graduate of Bay High School
- *Three Years at LSU in Engineering
- *Thirteen years with Tennessee Gas Pipe Line Co., with experience in Machine Maintenance, Clerical and Construction
- *Served on Boards such as Hancock County Fair Association, Hancock County Soil Conservation Commission, Hancock County Farm Bureau, Interim wastewater Commission
- *Two years on Port and Harbor Commission
- *Eight years as Supervisor of District 1

MY PRESENT INTERESTS IN WAVELAND ARE:

I have opposed the recent action of the new hospital site being moved to an area that is not central to both cities and the county.

I have plans for a joint effort with the City of Waveland to install railroad crossing signals at Waveland Ave., Coleman Ave., St. Joseph and Nicholson Ave.

All roads blacktopped in the old District 1 of Waveland for the last 8 years were a joint effort of District 1 and the City of Waveland.

Until January 1, 1984, the beach in Waveland North of Waveland Ave. is not in District 1. If you remember, after the beach road was torn up in Hurricane Frederick, that portion from Buccaneer Park to Bayou Cadet was the first portion repaired, and this was the portion in District 1.

The abandoned piling and drain pipes were removed from Waveland Ave. to Bayou Cadet with District 1 funds.

I initiated a new committee, consisting of the County and both Cities, to seek funds to rebuild our sand beach.

I have assisted the City of Waveland with more equipment than any other District in the county.

These along with many other accomplishments are proof of my interest in the citizens of Waveland.

On the local scene Friday night, the Bay High Tigers will tangle with the St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaws.

In the game last year held at the Rock-A-Chaw stadium, it was standing room only. Fan turnout should be the same this year at Tiger stadium.

Coach Snuffy Smith's Tigers have a 3-1 record and Vernon Powell's Rocks are 2-2 after an impressive victory over Long Beach last week.

There were very few folks who thought the Rocks would handle the Bearcats the way they did.

Kickoff is scheduled for 7:30 p.m., so we suggest supporters of both the Tigers and Rocks should try and arrive at the stadium a little early.

It is going to be hard to decide just who the victor will be, and in all probability it will be a good defensive game.

We hope to see you at the game.

Coach Irvin Favre's Hawks will celebrate Homecoming Friday night by entertaining East Central.

The Hawk's are 3-1 for the season, and seem to really have it together. Their only set back was a 19-21 contest with arch rival Pearl River Central.

The Hawk football squad is expecting the stadium to be filled with supporters for Homecoming.

Coach Favre knows his Hawks play much better with a big fan support. We are hoping it will be standing room only.

The Pass Christian Pirates will journey to Perkinston to tangle with the Stone County Tomcats.

The young Pirates will be seeking victory number two for the season.

Kenneth McKinney, the new head coach of the Pirates should really be getting things together by now and we are looking for a strong finish by the Pass this season.

Just think, on October 1, the National Space and Technology Laboratories will be celebrating its 20th anniversary.

It seems as only yesterday the facility was announced, yet many things have happened at the site which was known in early days as the Mississippi Test Facility.

Rockets tested at NSTL were used to place men on the moon, orbit the earth, and even return to earth and be reused.

Many things have been done at NSTL and many more are to be done.

We have some very fine families who have moved to our communities in connection with the site, and many have made this their home.

On the other side there are those who were forced to move for the construction of the facility. They will always remember the shock they received, and they do not think the facility was a good idea.

We do want to wish everyone at NSTL a Happy 20th Anniversary.

This is just a reminder about the Nacaise Crossing Gumbo Festival which starts Friday night.

This will be the ninth year for the event which is held Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Some very popular country entertainers are scheduled for appearances.

We hope to see you at the Gumbo Festival on Hwy. 603 North of Kiln at Nacaise Crossing.

Beach ordinances ineffective without enforcement by police

Sept. 25, 1983
Editor
Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir,

I'm writing in reference to the broken glass on the beaches. Several weeks ago I was crabbing with my two boys on the beach in Waveland. My 6-year-old stepped on a piece of glass, cut his foot badly, and had to be taken to the Emergency Room at Hancock General Hospital.

There is no possible way to prevent ill-bred people from throwing glass and bottles on the beach, but the police could correct this by enforcing the ordinances which were set up concerning glass containers on the beach.

A visit to the Florida beaches is proof that beaches can be kept clean and free of broken glass. I have yet to see the police reprimanding anyone for having glass on the beach, so why set up an ordinance if it's not going to be enforced?

I realize that police are busy and have more important things to do than to keep up with who has glass on the beach and who does not, however, when a child is seriously cut by glass carelessly thrown on the beach, one realizes the importance of keeping people with glass off the beaches.

There is no other way to deal with this problem except have the police get stricter with enforcing the beach ordinance. It is a shame to let our beaches get in such a disgusting state when the police do have control over this!

I enjoy the beaches and so do most of the people who live in our area. I would like to see them cleaner and kept better.

Thank you for the opportunity to express my feelings on this.

Gardener offers tips following bee attack

By JOE PILET

Warning! Things with wings—STING.

And a lot of insects are flying around actively during these early fall days.

Notice all the tent caterpillars in the pecan trees; the wasp nests cleverly hidden on shrub stems or under house eaves, spiders lurking in dark corners, and those horrible, excitable bees that go underground.

Perhaps since there are so many it might be well to make advance preparations. Have on hand flying insect spray, and keep it near you when you garden.

Keep a cautious eye open.

If, in spite of all these wary precautions to get a sting anyway here's what Albert Rauber of the Georgia Control Center prescribes: meat tenderizer right from your kitchen shelf.

If, however, you get a rash—or fever—better see a doctor. You could have an allergy.

Caterpillar stings may be removed by placing a strip of cellophane tape—sticky side down—then pull up to lift out the stingers.

Calomine lotion is somewhat soothing. Apply it following a good hot bath.

Bright colors attract these flying furious fiends and so does perfume. This is first hand information!

Rules governing operation of public dumps should be posted

Letter to the Editor:

To whom it may concern:

On Saturday, Sept. 24, I went to the Pearlington dump to get rid of some trash.

After unloading my pickup truck, I was attempting to pick up some firewood for the winter which I had already piled up.

A gentleman approached me and informed me that I could not remove anything from the dump, because of orders from the supervisors.

I would like to know why it is not allowed to pick up firewood for your own personal use.

The gentleman also informed me that if I would wait until after 4 p.m. I could remove anything I wanted from the dump.

What is the difference in what time of the day I loaded the wood?

Who employs this gentleman, the City of Bay St. Louis, Hancock County or the supervisors?

An answer to these questions would be sincerely appreciated.

Thank you,

School officials cite pre-game auto parade as dangerous practice

Sept. 27, 1983

Editor
Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Editor,

A very dangerous situation has developed over the last few years that we feel parents of all school age children should be aware of here in Bay St. Louis.

The morning before a SSC-Bay High football game may seem to some to be a good time for a car parade in the name of school spirit. There are, however, approximately a thousand school children in the area around St. Stanislaus, including the girls at Our Lady Academy and the grammar school children at Bay Catholic Elementary.

To add any more traffic to the already congested area would be unsafe. To have that many teenage drivers coming into a congested area with their minds on school spirit or football, but not on being careful with their automobiles, is a potentially lethal situation.

Should we wait until someone is seriously hurt before doing something about it?

We are asking all parents to give their children just enough time to get to school tomorrow, and do not allow them the time to ride around town for a half hour before going to school.

We are also asking the police to protect all the children in the area.

Sincerely yours,

State Health Departments to administer vaccine

County health departments throughout Mississippi are getting ready to battle a serious, sometimes fatal, disease which most often occurs from October through April.

Beginning Oct. 3, county health departments will administer influenza immunizations. Again this year, vaccine recipients must pay to help cover the cost of the vaccine and its administration; the cost per recipient is $4.

Health officials recommend that all persons age 65 and older and people who live in nursing homes, long-term care facilities, or who have contact with such facilities should get the vaccine.

can for protection against influenza.

Vaccine will be available to all Mississippians, but State Health Officer Dr. Alton B. Cobb emphasized the special need for the "high risk" to take advantage of this disease prevention opportunity.

"Vaccination has proved to be the most effective method of protecting those people at greatest risk," Dr. Cobb said. "High risk groups include those 65 years of age and older and people who live in nursing homes, long-term care facilities, or who have contact with such facilities."

the county health departments. The vaccine provides protection from the current prevalent strains of influenza: A/Brazil/79, A/Philippines/82, and B/Singapore/79.

"Even though we offered a similar protection program last year, Mississippi reported some 561 cases of influenza," Dr. Cobb mentioned. "In 1982, 1983, and 1984, influenza was the cause of death in 11 people, and in 1985, it was the cause of death in 10 people."

this season," the State Health Officer added. "But we want to prevent as much flu as possible."

Influenza is an acute disease of the respiratory tract characterized by fever, chills, headache, muscle pain, tiredness, mild sore throat, and inflammation of the nasal passages. Cough is often present.

Most people recover from influenza within a week, but some people develop complications, such as pneumonia, which can be fatal.

Commissioner reports availability of economy admissions

Advance gate admission tickets and super savers tickets are available to goers for the 124th annual Mississippi State Fair, Oct. 1 in Jackson. The Fair will be held on the State Fairgrounds Complex.

"We are pleased to offer special savings to fairgoers. We want all Mississippians to be able to attend the fair," said Jim Buck Ross, commissioner of agriculture and commerce. Ross is also chairman of the Mississippi State Fair Commission which sponsors the fair. Advance tickets to the fair may be purchased at the Coliseum Box Office now through Oct. 5. For ages 12 and over, five advance tickets will cost

$5 and represents a savings of $1. For ages 6 to 11, five advance tickets are $3, a savings of $2.

The fair offers free parking and free gate admission daily from 10 a.m. until noon, except Saturday and Sunday. All military personnel in uniform will be admitted free.

This year's fair again offers a super savers special. From noon until 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, $3 parks a fairgoer's car on the Mississippi Fairgrounds Complex and admits all passengers to the mile-long midway.

A busload of fairgoers will be admitted for $10 daily including fairgrounds parking and gate admission.

Regular gate admission is $2 per person 12 years or older from noon until closing.

Children 6 through 11 are $1 and children under 5 are admitted free. Parking is $1 per car.

Farrow Amusement Company of Jackson will set up a variety of rides and attractions on the fair's mile-long midway. Fairgoers may again purchase coupons for all rides.

paying a low price of $7 you can ride all the rides (unlimited) on Wednesday, Oct. 12, from 6 p.m. until midnight.

In addition, school children can save during "School Day," Friday, Oct. 14.

Reduced rates for rides for children will be from 11 a.m. until 6 p.m. Free gate admission also on Oct. 14 for school age children. Parking will be $1.

WHERE'S TWEETY PIE?—Sylvester is my name and gettin' out of the Hancock County Animal Shelter is my game. Sufferin' succotash, doesn't anyone want an adorable puddy cat who 'loves' birdies! Well you're lookin' at him buster, a six-month-old male black and white persian, all cat of course, available to a good home by callin' 467-0475. ...And make it snappy, I don't have much time left! (Staff photo by Wayne Ducomb Jr.)

ONE DAY TO LIVE—Where's the key? Winkin, Blinkin and Nod seem to be gesturing that plea. They are overdue for extermination at the Hancock County Animal Shelter, but the Bay-Waveland Humane Society has requested the three female kittens not be exterminated until late Friday to give them an opportunity to be adopted by a good home. Two of the six-week-old tabby kittens are silver and one is red. They are all healthy, obviously playful, silky, cuddly and gentle. For adoption information telephone 467-0475. SUBOCCIPITAL HEADACHES

How many useless remedies are taken for this condition is anyone's guess. The pain in this type of headache usually starts at the base of the head, by the neck, and spreads to the sides and top of the head. People subject to this condition have a developing structural problem in the spine. Usually, the headache frequency and intensity increases as the spine undergoes further adverse changes! Working in static postures, such as long hours at a desk or typing, serve to aggravate this problem. Competent Chiropractic care will clear up the majority of these problems.

$124,000 needed to assist family of brain damaged boy

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Parents of a semi-comatose brain damaged Bay St. Louis boy need some $124,000 to repay their son's medical expenses and purchase a reclining wheelchair for the youth.

The family also needs a second-hand automobile to visit their son now convalescing at a Pass Christian nursing home.

Melville V. Loisel, 15, in February was helping his family move when a falling mattress knocked him from the back of a moving truck causing the youth to strike his head on the pavement.

Regarding Loisel's chances for recovery, Dr. Victor T. Bazzone, a Gulfport neurological surgeon, writes, "The patient's prognosis is very grim at best. I do not expect that he will ever be able to be a productive citizen."

"He will need a great deal of nursing care as well as physical rehabilitation. Even so, I do not feel that he will ever return to his 'normal self,'" Bazzone concludes.

The boy's father, Eugene A. Loisel Sr. of Bay St. Louis, reports that about two months ago his son's condition improved slightly from a complete coma to the present semi-comatose state.

He explains the boy appears to be conscious and responds somewhat with eye blinks, head movement and attempts to speak, but a tracheotomy allowing him to breathe prevents verbalization.

The hopeful father feels the boy recognizes him and his wife.

The youth is fed with a stomach tube, the father adds.

Melville Loisel was in Gulfport Memorial Hospital for several months, but about two weeks ago was moved to Miramar Nursing Center in Pass Christian after his improvement, the father says.

But the boy now needs a specially-equipped reclining wheel chair which costs about $500 and the hospital bill totals about $123,000, Eugene Loisel reports.

In addition, the family needs a second-hand car to visit the ailing youth, he says.

The father says Gulfport Memorial officials are graciously allowing the family to repay the high bill at a rate of $25 monthly, but he can't afford to buy the wheelchair.

Eugene Loisel says he is a 67-year-old retired machinist attempting to support a wife and six children on social security retirement income.

He does not want to declare bankruptcy, but last year lost his home and van to creditors.

In addition, Eugene Loisel says Mississippi Power Co. is going to disconnect his electrical service because of a $200 delinquent bill payment and he didn't pay a $90 bill when the family lived in Waveland.

He says his family will lose food stored in a freezer if the electrical service is disconnected.

The father proudly reports his brain-damaged son was an active and interested Bay Junior High School student prior to the accident.

He also proudly reports his son, Eugene Jr., is a sergeant in the Bay St. Louis Police Department Junior Auxiliary.

Eugene Loisel says a bank account was opened in his son's name, a Hancock Bank for donations, but only $801 has been deposited in the fund.

He reports that collection cans at local business establishments were in one case removed by owners or generated meager amounts of money and were discontinued.

To assist this family write Patricia Loisel, the boy's mother, at P.O. Box 724, Bay St. Louis, Miss. 39520, telephone 467-5679 or deposit funds the bank account.

would be required to adopt the state organization's by-laws, which include the $1-per-acre requirement, to provide him firm legal ground as a State Legislature lobbyist.

Breaux reported the previous Hancock chapter collected some $387, but of that amount $742 was sent to the state organization and $72 was spent for local expenses which left $23 in the treasury.

He noted the former group by-laws required and new guidelines propose that 80 percent of the membership fees be given to the state organization.

Liddell reported the state landowners group may ask the legislature to consider a measure requiring mineral owners to pay a token tax on this underground property.

With this tax the mineral owners could be clearly identified, but if they did not pay the tax the surface landowner could obtain the minerals, Liddell said.

He noted mineral leasing firms and oil production companies frequently can not find or it is difficult to trace all heirs of a deceased mineral owner and for that reason the petroleum industry endorses the efforts of the organization.

"There may be powerful interests opposed to us, but I haven't seen them yet," Liddell stated.

He explained that surface property owners as required by state law can obtain "reasonable" reimbursement for damage caused by oil and gas well drilling activities, but frequently that unspecified amount must be determined by the courts.

"The oil company has a right to get to a site it wants to drill on with the consent of the mineral owner," Liddell stated.

The executive director said a change in state law would give the surface landowner more control in such situations.

Liddell said the state association coupled with strong county chapters would provide a "strong voice" in the legislature.

He urged those attending to contact former Hancock chapter members to ask them to attend the next meeting which Breaux set at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 18 at the Annunciation gymnasium.

Liddell said he's in the process of organizing nine more county chapters.

A statement on the landowner association membership form says, "We are studying the laws of Louisiana, Florida and Indiana to determine how they may be tailored to the needs of our state."

"We are considering legal research into the action taken in Mississippi, in past years, to bring about this unacceptable state of affairs," the form states.

"We are investigating the wording of proposed legislation that will return mineral to the surface landowner without violating existing law and constitutional tests," the statement includes.

Point of Law

Q.—For the past year, I have been unable to work due to a serious illness.

All of my bills are past due, and several creditors have filed suit against me.

I am thinking about filing for bankruptcy, but I do not want to lose my home, car and everything I own.

What will I have to give up in bankruptcy?

A.—This is a very complex area of the law, and your bankruptcy attorney can advise you in detail.

Generally, the law will allow you to keep your home, your car and your household goods, unless any of these items are collateral for a loan.

If they are collateral for a loan, you will either have to pay the loan up to the value of the property, or surrender the property to the creditor.

A lien on household goods is voided in bankruptcy unless the loan was made for the purchase of them.

Also, tools you use in your trade, farm implements and certain other personal items may be retained in bankruptcy.

PIRATE DAY—Sporting their best buccaneer outfits on Pirate Day at the Pass Christian Middle School are math teacher Mary Kinser, alias Captain Kidd, left; school counselor and spirit week chairperson Molly Bowles, alias Captain Hook; and an unidentified Pirate. Spirit week began Monday with red, white and blue day, Tuesday was tacky day, Pirate day on Wednesday and Thursday is dress up day. The four day affair will conclude tonight with the presentation of the court at halftime of the Pass Christian Middle School-Stone County football game at Francis S. McDonald Stadium. Blackbeard, aka principal Mike Bonney, stated that spirit week was an annual occurrence and that things would get back to normal Friday.

PRC to renovate Pearl River Hall

The Pearl River College Board of Trustees voted during their regular September meeting to hire Fred Wagner, a Bay St. Louis architect, to draw the plans for the summer renovation of Pearl River Hall here on the Poplarville campus.

Wagner gave Pearl River College a $390,000 construction cost estimate back in May, 1982. But progress on the project has been delayed because of lack of funds.

The Pearl River County Board of Supervisors however, recently earmarked an additional one-half mill to be used by the college for enlargement and improvement of the college.

The Pearl River County Supervisors, who had turned down the college's request to continue a two-and-one-half mill special building project levy back in July 1982 and '83, which would have enabled the college to begin renovation, did agree last week to up the PRC millage one-half mill.

The additional millage will mean $35,000 to $40,000 per year to the college.

According to Dr. Marvin R. White, PRC's president, this will enable the college to begin renovation of the local county's namesake.

Marion County board member Frank Fortenberry, a member of the PRC Building Committee, told the other board members that the male resident hall was in dire need of repair. "We can't wait any longer," Fortenberry said.

Wagner's '82 report included new flooring, new air conditioning, insulation, insulated windows and new outside entrances.

Dr. White also told the board that he didn't expect the new cost estimate to be much higher than Wagner's earlier report. Everything should be ready to begin the renovation project as soon as school is out next May.

White said the next building project will be the renovation and 60-bed addition to White Hall, a female resident hall on campus. Additional office and classroom space is also needed.

Ron Holmes, the PRC business manager, told the Board that Governor William Winter's five percent across the board cut in allocations will cost the college $135-150,000.

Holmes said some belt tightening would have to take place, however, he didn't think salaries or budgets would have to be cut.

Nutrition specialist cautions against high-calorie snacks

By BARBARA McLAURIN

Food and snacking are part of the fun at football games and other fall outings around the college campus.

Unfortunately, these same activities can add calories. Regardless of the sporting or social event, it's smart for college students to think nutrition and remember calories when football games, fall airs, parties and other social events come up.

In order to enjoy party foods from the rear of a station wagon or a bus, take special care when serving perishable foods that might cause food poisoning. They must be kept hot or cold at safe temperatures.

Make good use of the ice chest to keep all perishable foods refrigerated. Meat sandwiches and other foods made with salad dressing, such as tuna and chicken salad, deviled eggs, potato salad and slaw, need special care.

If serving hot foods, keep them hot. Serve and eat them promptly. Fried chicken cannot be kept safely for an extended time.

As a guide to planning a pre-game party or selecting your snack foods, here are some hints on the food values and calories contained in proper foods:

Hot dogs and hamburgers provide servings of meat and bread. Without the trimmings (catsup, mayonnaise, chili, etc.) they provide approximately 330 calories for one hot dog, and the same number of calories for one hamburger. Mayonnaise, chili and catsup add considerable calories. One-fourth cup of chili adds about 100 more calories.

French fries provide carbohydrate, fat, and some vitamin C to the diet. A package of 20 French fries is about 233 calories.

A small package of corn chips with chili is approximately 350 calories and contains a minimum of protein.

A small bag of roasted peanuts has protein and the vitamin niacin at 211 calories per one-fourth cup of nuts.

Potato chips provide some carbohydrate and much fat at 114 calories per 10 chips. Other chips, such as corn chips, tortillas and cheese crackers are similar in content.

One 8-ounce soft drink with sugar (small cup) provides approximately 100 calories. Coffee and tea provide no calories. However, cream and sugar add about 36 calories per cup of the latter two beverages.

Popcorn is a good snack when considering calories. It provides 40 calories per cup. However, caramel popcorn is loaded with 135 calories per cup.

A medium apple provides about 80 calories, whereas a candied or caramel apple has about 200.

Ice cream contributes calcium and protein to diets. An ice cream sandwich has 170 calories and a chocolate-coated bar, 120 calories.

A ham and cheese sandwich is a mini-meal at 300 calories. Also, a tuna, chicken, or turkey salad sandwich is about 300 calories per sandwich.

A cup of hot chocolate at 240 calories per 8-ounce cup can count as a serving of milk, providing calcium and some protein to the diet, as well as sugar. A carton of whole milk has the same nutrients at 150 calories. Skim milk has 90 calories.

Football fans and other fall party goers should be aware of the foods they eat on the run and the calories they contain. Whether you're watching your weight or not, good nutrition and a balanced diet are important anytime.

CLEARING OUT THE DRAINS—Sam Perniclaro, District Four supervisor, rides one of the bulldozers being used to clear out the ditches at the Spanish Acres subdivision. Perniclaro and Mayor Larry Bennett both say a lot of the drainage problem is being caused by people throwing their trash into the drainage ditches.

Spacelab installed in Columbia's cargo bay

Spacelab was moved a giant stride closer to its maiden mission when the reusable orbital research laboratory was installed in the cargo bay of the Space Shuttle orbiter Columbia at the Kennedy Space Center, Fla.

Columbia is scheduled to carry Spacelab and its four-member NASA/ESA payload crew into orbit on Oct. 28 for a nine-day verification and science mission. More than 70 individual investigations in five research areas will be performed during the mission. "Spacelab installation went very smoothly," said John Thomas, Spacelab Program Office manager at the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala. The installation sequence began when Spacelab was lifted by strongback from the Cargo Integration Test Equipment (CITE) stand in the Operations and Checkout Building, placed in the cargo cannister and moved to the Orbiter Processing Facility, where it was placed in Columbia's cargo bay.

Spacelab, designed, developed, and funded by the European Space Agency (ESA) as Europe's contribution to NASA's Space Transportation System, had been in the O&C building undergoing processing since its arrival in the United States from Europe in December 1981.

It had been undergoing testing in the CITE stand for approximately three months. The CITE stand duplicates mechanical and electronic systems of the orbiter and is used to verify that payloads such as Spacelab are compatible with the Shuttle.

The Marshall Space Flight Center monitors development work in Europe and is responsible for developing peripheral components such as the Spacelab Transfer Tunnel. Spacelab 1 is a joint NASA/ESA mission with each agency sponsoring approximately half the scientific payload.

The Marshall Center is responsible for the U.S. portion of the payload and overall management of the first mission. ESA's SPICE (Spacelab Payload Integration and Coordination in Europe) team is responsible for the European part of the payload.

Two other NASA centers are also involved in the mission. The Kennedy Space Center is responsible for processing the Spacelab and launching it aboard the Shuttle, and the Johnson Space Center, Houston, is responsible for Shuttle Flight Operations.

City championship to be determined

Bay High, St. Stanislaus clash Friday

BY RANDY POWELL

It's time to get ready for the annual shootout in Bay St. Louis. No, it's not some kind of robbery. It's Bay High School versus St. Stanislaus. At stake is the football supremacy of Bay St. Louis and bragging rights until next year.

St. Stanislaus, 9-2, enters the contest on the crest of a two game winning streak. Following losses to Hancock North Central, 26-14, and St. John, 14-6, the Rock-A-Chow edged powerful Mobile County, 47, and then blasted Long Beach, 17-6.

Bay High, 3-1, opened the season with a 7-6 win over the Washington of Stone County, held on to trim Pass Christian, 24, lost to Pearl River Central, 14-7, and then rebounded by posting a 7-0 shutout of previously undefeated Vardaville.

The two city schools have split their last four meetings with the Tigers winning the last two, 20-0 last year and 14-7 in 1981. St. Stanislaus won 12-0 in 1980 and 14-0 in 1979.

Both teams are playing their best ball of the year and as Rock-A-Chow coach Vernon Powell noted, the team that makes the fewest mistakes will probably win.

The Rocks have outscored the Tigers, 45-27, in their first four games, but Bay High has allowed only 34 points while St. Stanislaus has given up 55. That breaks down to an average of 11.25 points scored and 13.75 allowed per game for the Rocks. The Tigers' figures are 6.75 and 8.5 respectively.

"We've won two games back-to-back which gives us a good feeling," Powell reported. "We've had several good days of practice, making adjustments, and going over our game plan."

Powell stated that the Rocks-A-Chows had cut down on mental mistakes and that was the key to their winning streak.

"We have a lot of people who can play. We've come a long way, gaining a little size and experience. Bay High is bigger, but we've played good against two big teams in a row," Powell added.

"Bay High has a good football team. They have the ability to explode offensively at any time, and they have always had a good defense,"

Powell explained. "Smith has done an excellent job."

Bay High coach James (Smuffy) Smith could not be reached for comments.

An overflow crowd is expected at Tiger Stadium with kickoff set for 7:30 p.m. Friday night in Bay St. Louis.

Hawks ninth graders journey to d'Iberville

By ELLIS CUEVAS

The Hancock North Central Hawks ninth grade football team will travel to d'Iberville for a non-conference game at 7 p.m. tonight.

Coach Joe Shaw's Hawks are 3-1 this season, and are leading the Deep South Conference with a 2-0 record. Last Thursday the Hawk ninth graders defeated Pass Christian, 12-6 in overtime play.

Pass scored first when Luis Martin scored on a 52 yard run in the second quarter.

The Hawks got on the score board in the third quarter when Brett Favre connected on a six yard pass to Troy Wickton for a score. The Hawks failed to convert on the PAT.

The game ended deadlocked at 6-6, and in overtime play Pass Christian received the ball first.

Taking over on the Pirates' ten yard line, Charles Burton, tailback, carried twice, moving to the one-foot line. On the third play, Favre scored on a quarterback sneak giving the Hawks a 12-6 victory.

The Pirates were stopped six times during the game on pass interceptions. Shannon Smith and Favre intercepted two each, and Delano Lewis and Norris Chaison one each.

Conference lead at stake in HNC homecoming event

By EDGAR PEREZ
Hancock North Central's Hawks Friday will defend their first place conference rank before a homecoming crowd Friday against an East Central squad fresh off its first win of the season.

Hancock's 20-14 victory over Pass Christian last week gives the Hawks a 2-0 conference tally, good for first place along with Pearl River Central.

Bay High lurks in third place in the Deep South Conference with three wins and one loss.

East Central orchestrated a sound defeat of Leakeville Friday, taking a decisive 20-6 victory.

East Central has suffered losses this year at the hands of Perry County, 14-0; George County, 30-0; and Vanceville, 12-0.

"We just cannot afford to get beat at this time," said Hawk coach Irvin Favre concerning Friday's forthcoming encounter in Hawk Stadium.

"This is a very important game for us—we have got to stay alive in the conference in order to take the battle to PRC in that last game," Favre explained.

"We can't afford to have a let down now," he added.

The Hawks will be facing DSC All-Conference Lineman Ken Marble, a six-foot, three-inch 240-pound noseguard who is a threat on both offense and defense.

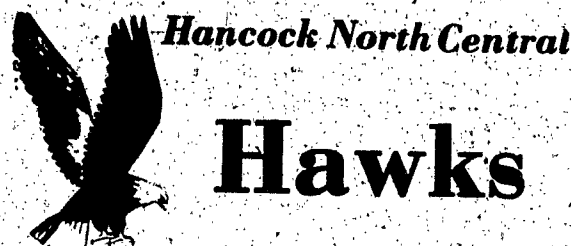

"We'll be looking at a pretty good defensive ball club," Favre feels.

"This will be an important conference game for us," the coach reiterated.

"East Central and Hancock is always a close game—we went up there last year knowing we had the better team, and we lost it in overtime," he recalled.

"We're in good health, and we will be ready for a tough game Friday," Favre stated.

Homecoming ceremonies, including academic and athletic Hall of Fame induction of former students, will get underway at 7 p.m. Kickoff is slated for 7:30 p.m.

Q. Three years ago I was severely injured in an auto accident and haven't worked since. Even though my condition hasn't improved, I've been thinking of trying to get some kind of job because I need the money. If I do go to work, will my disability benefits stop right away?

A. No, but if you take a job, you should notify Social Security. Since your condition has not improved, you may be eligible for a 9-month trial work period during which you may work and still receive disability checks. If your attempt to work is unsuccessful and you are still severely disabled, benefits will continue. However, if at the end of this trial period you can continue to work, you will be paid benefits for an adjustment period of 3 months and be covered by Medicare for as long as 3 more years. If you become unable to work again within a year of the month your checks stop, notify Social Security and your disability checks may be started again.

One out of every six people in the United States gets a Social Security check.

State continues conference action in Athens Saturday

"Between the hedges" is not the most inviting spot in the world to begin out-of-state action, but that's the task facing Mississippi State's football team this week as it meets Georgia in Athens' Sanford Stadium Saturday at 12:30 p.m.

Southeastern Conference play again comes into the situation as Coach Vince Dooley's host squad is starting league play. Georgia is 2-0-1 after downing UCLA 19-8, tying Clemson 16-16, and then defeating South Carolina 31-13.

State hopes to rebound from a 35-12 loss to Florida at Scott Field as it takes a 2-1 overall mark and 0-1 SEC worksheet into the fray.

MSU will be facing a UGA team which owns the nation's best regular-season record since 1980—a composite of 34-1-1—with the loss being a 13-3 downing at Clemson in 1981 and the tie occurring on Sept. 17 at Clemson.

Anytime the two "Bulldogs" of the SEC tangle, though, it is usually a physical yet free-wheeling affair.

Georgia brings one of its top early-season passing percentages into the battle as Lastinger and sophomore QB Todd Williams have combined for 36 of 63 attempts for 436 yards and 57.1 percent success rate.

Records are only important in the win-loss column in team play, though, and both MSU Coach Emory Ballard and Georgia's Dooley (older brother of MSU grad Bill Dooley, head coach at Virginia Tech) are anxious for the test.

UGa also has one of the top defenses that State will face in '83 with All-America rover-back Terry Hoage, linebacker Tommy Thurston, defensive end Freddie Gilbert, and defensive guard Mike Weaver posing many of the problems.

State's Bond has been the "triggerman" of the Wishbone offense with 25 of 55 pass tries for 352 yards, five touchdowns rushing to lead the squad, and 122 net yards on 29 carries for a 4.2 average.

Edwards, who had the longest run from scrimmage against Georgia last year with his 65-yard sprint, tops MSU carriers with 153 yards on 34 carries for a 4.5 average. He's a 6-4, 230-pound senior from Lumberton, Miss.

BREAD WAS 21¢ A LOAF. A CORVAIR, ABOUT $2,000. MINI-SKIRTS, MINI-CARS, MINI-ELECTRIC BILLS.

Liz and Dick made history in Cleopatra. A posthumous Pulitzer for Mississippi's William Faulkner. Ole Miss edged Arkansas in the Sugar Bowl. The Beatles invaded. JFK died. And inflation began to spiral upward.

Suppose you found your 1963 electric bills stuffed in the back of a desk drawer. You'd see that your annual cost for power was around—a hundred dollars! It might be a good idea if you also found your old paystubs along with them. You'd see how much the dollar started shrinking right about then.

In the twenty years since 1963, inflation has been our constant companion. Yet in terms of what you actually use and enjoy, you're twenty years to the good. Tally it up. You actually enjoy more comfort and convenience. That's one reason you pay more. Another reason is that it costs us more to make electricity these days.

Take a look at these consumer price comparisons:

Price Increases Since 1963
Groceries	Up 201%
Home Ownership	Up 323%
Clothing	Up 97%
Transportation	Up 213%

What you don't see is that our costs for the fuel to make electricity have quadrupled since 1973, yet the price you pay for power hasn't.

But a better way to appreciate the value you're getting from the kilowatt-hours you buy is to get out your last Mississippi Power bill and break it down yourself. Divide by the number of days each month and the number of people in your household. The result is your average electricity cost per person, per day, and might look something like this:

EXAMPLE
$140.00 Mississippi Power Bill	30 Number of Days per Month	4 Number in Household	= $1.17 A Day per Person for Electricity

Electricity from Mississippi Power. A good value in '63. A better value in '83. And that's the mini and the maxi of it.

One of a series. If you have a question about your electric service or Mississippi Power, call or write. The address is on your bill stub.

Stone-Pass game regarded as a 'biggy'

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

It's a 'biggy,' Kenneth McKinney, Pass Christian High School Pirates head football coach, says regarding his team's upcoming Friday night game in Perkinston against Stone County High School.

Both teams have a 1-3 win-loss record this season and are Deep South Conference members.

But, McKinney says the Stone Tomcats have improved considerably during the last two weeks and should give the Pirates a lot of trouble offensively and defensively.

Injuries continue to plague the Pass backfield with Tailback and Starting Safety Tony Howell now out for the season with a broken leg suffered in the Pirates' brutal loss to the Hancock North Central Hawks last Friday night, the coach reports.

Pirate Cornerback John McKay and Fullback Dwayne Lizana are both suffering ankle injuries which will bench them Friday night, McKinney says.

But Back Pat McDonald, who suffered a dislocated arm earlier this season, will play Friday on a limited basis as a punter, the head coach reveals.

With that report, McKinney says about 20 to 23 players are able to play out of a roster total of 28.

He reports Stone has a large number of players to draw from, bigger linemen and good speed this year.

McKinney notes that due to Pass Christian's lack of depth, his players tend to wear out in the second half because of their unrelenting offensive and defensive tasks.

The Pass and Stone both utilize a diversity of passing and rushing plays.

The coach reports he's relying on the awesome Pirate linemen, who continue to effectively hit hard under the direction of Line Coach Larry McGill, to be the 'mainstay' of the team and protect Quarterback Joey Rogers.

McKinney says William Bonney, who last week exhibited outstanding and effective field goal ability, will continue as field goal specialist for the Pirates.

Game kickoff time is 7:30 p.m. at the Gulf Coast Junior College-Perkinston Campus stadium located just west of Hwy. 40.

YARDAGE LOSER—Sacking Hancock North Central Hawk Quarterback Scott Favre, No. 11, in a Friday night game at Francis S. McDonald Stadium in Pass Christian is Pass High School Pirate Lineman Quinton Brown as Pirate Lineman Perry Young, left, No. 70, and Hawk Guard Jimmy Papis, No.

23, observe the hit. Pass Christian lost the contest, 20-14. The Pirates this Friday will journey to the Mississippi Gulf Coast Junior College Perkinston Campus stadium to play Stone County High School. (Staff photo by Wayne Ducomb Jr.)

THE UPS AND DOWNS OF JIGGING SPOONS

In the last fishing tips column, we talked about swimming spoons for bass fishing. The other important type of spoon for bass anglers is the jiggging spoon.

The jiggging spoon — a thick, heavy one like the Mann-O-Lure or Hopkins Spoon — is my favorite lure for catching fish in cold water or after the passage of a cold front. There are several lakes along the Red Man Tournament Trail where jiggging spoons may be the lure of choice.

Using a depth sounder or chart recorder — I use an OMC Tracker — you often can find fish stacked up in one place. Under cold water or post cold-front conditions, the best way to catch these tightly schooled fish is vertical jiggging of a spoon with your boat right over the bass.

Using sonar equipment to keep them located, lower the lure straight down to the correct depth. A slow, rhythmic motion, jiggling the spoon up and down in the middle of the school, will produce strikes. They'll almost always hit as the spoon is falling. When jiggging with a spoon, keep complete control over the lure at all times and keep a close eye on the line. A lot of times the fish won't hit hard, but rather just seems to have it all of a sudden. If the line twitches, or if the spoon stops falling before it should, set the hook. It's probably a bass.

An important point in vertical jiggging is to let the spoon fall all the way to bottom if you're fishing the lip of a dropoff, a spot that often holds fish. You'll get snagged on bottom a lot, but a short, sharp whip action of the rod will usually let the spoon shake itself loose with its own weight. You won't lose many.

I usually won't use a jiggging spoon unless the fish are 10 or more feet deep. On the deep end of the scale, you can work the spoon down to 50 or 60 feet, depending on where the fish are holding.

If conditions call for it, don't forget the jiggging spoon the next time you're fishing one of the events on the Red Man Tournament Trail. Until next time, this is Ron Shearer.

Bowhunters going for deer Saturday

This weekend will be a big one for deer and goose hunters.

On Saturday, Oct. 1 the archery season for deer begins statewide. It will continue through Nov. 18.

Archery hunters may take one antlered buck per day, but not more than five during the license year. Bowhunters may take one antlerless deer per day, but not more than three during the license year.

Deer taken during the archery season apply toward the overall yearly bag limit on deer.

Enforcement officials at the Department of Wildlife Conservation in Jackson are reminding hunters that longbows are legal during the archery season on deer. No dogs, crossbows, or sidearms allowed while hunting deer during the archery season.

Bowhunters should know that if they operate a deer camp during the deer season, they must obtain a camp permit from the Department of Wildlife Conservation before beginning operation. The permit is free.

Hunting hours are one-half hour before sunrise until one-half hour after sunset.

Resident hunters must have a sportsman's license or an all game hunting and fishing license and the archery/primitive weapon permit, before going into the woods.

A man of the people, he works for his city's growth

By JUNE HEYDT

He fights to get what he wants for his people. He writes to presidents giving them advice. He helped open the first volunteer fire department. He's opened parks, cut ribbons, dedicated land and turned a weigh station into a hospitality center.

He's applied for grants and gotten over $5 million for improvements in his city.

He helped put Waveland on the map. He also wants to give credit where credit is due and says, "It's the people who have made it possible for Waveland to grow, not one person."

John Longo, mayor of Waveland, who has been in office 21 years, was first elected as an alderman in 1962.

Upon first taking office, Longo said, the city was only receiving $500 in sales taxes. In August 1963 the city received $44,000 in taxes—one example of how the city has grown.

When Longo became an alderman, Garfield Ladner was mayor. "He was a fine old man," said Longo.

During Ladner's illness Longo acted as mayor pro tempore. After Ladner's death in 1974 Longo was elected mayor in a special election.

He's been re-elected seven times since.

A graduate of Loyola University, Longo's ingenious ideas seem to have always paid off. One, for example, was the making of the pier at the end of Terrace Avenue. The pier named the Ladner Memorial Pier was made out of old wreckage from Hurricane Camille.

Another idea of his that panned out was taking an old truck weighing station, no longer in use, and turning it into a hospitality center.

Longo said, "We are the first city over the state line and should have something to welcome people to the Coast. At the center, coffee and friendship is offered," said Longo.

He was also responsible for seeing that the Waveland welcoming signs were installed on the highway.

One of the most significant things Longo has done while in office is the passing of the Fisherman's Aid Bill.

Longo said at a town meeting, the wife of a fisherman asked him if there was anything that could be done to help the fishermen. She said they were having a terrible season and didn't know how they were going to live.

Longo looked into the matter and later presented a bill to the local officials. The bill then went to the governor and finally to the White House.

Within 30 days the president of the United States had signed the bill, said Longo, noting that it was the first time a local mayor has ever written a bill and had it signed by the President in 30 days.

The bill gave the fishermen loans,

John Longo Jr.

He's never missed a meeting

He signs proclamations

He puts up flags

He cuts ribbons

grants and also got them Social Security.

Longo said about the city that was incorporated in 1886, "We've had to fight for everything we've gotten."

And, the mayor has fought and the city's gotten a lot, such as:

- A new library.
- A modern sewer plant.
- A civic and cultural center.
- Lower insurance rates.
- Little League baseball.
- New police headquarters.
- Modern street lighting.
- A new fire station.
- Buccaneer Park.
- The Wave Pool.
- Expanded postal service.

Longo also made sure to get his city listed separately in the telephone book in 1974.

The chief man in Waveland tried to quit once, but they wouldn't let him. The people drew up a petition and presented it to him. The petition read, "The city needs John Longo with his qualifications and experience to continue in government."

Longo, who says, "There's no such thing as a part-time mayor," points out, "Waveland was more like a beach-side community when I first came. However, since then we have annexed US-90, Buccaneer Park, Mud Bayou, Idlewood Subdivision, and north to Oaklawn Restaurant."

Smiling, Longo continued, "We do still anticipate additional annexation."

"Property taxes are assessed at 15 percent in Waveland, in Bay St. Louis they are assessed at 30 percent," said Longo.

"We've never had an increase in taxes," added Longo.

"We still have free garbage collection and can boast of a sewerage system that's better than most in the state."

Longo's very proud of the shopping centers in Waveland such as 'Our Shopping Center' and 'Choctaw Shopping Center.' He said, "We got Kmart by offering them sodium vapor lamps for lighting."

Longo said, "Waveland has developed its identity and its economic pace—both requirements for a city's progress."

The father of six children, Longo says he hasn't missed a meeting since he's been in office.

A man of the people, Longo has seen his city grow and will probably be a part of Waveland's growth for some time in the future.

"It is very important to note that it is the people who are responsible for the growth of Waveland not any one person. Without the people, nothing could have been done," the mayor emphasizes.

He added, "And, the greatest people are in Waveland."

President Richard Nixon
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. President:

LET'S STOP INFLATION!!!!

You and I will probably never have the opportunity to meet; but because of your kind consideration after Hurricane Camille and the fact that we were in the SBA film together makes me feel like it's more than just a duty to express my views on Economic Stabilization.

Mr. President, I know that probably some of the best qualified persons in the nation are working on stabilizing the economy, but I have developed a simple program that I know could be made to work. It would work as follows:

1. A program designed to crush inflation, and to satisfy the need of industry, agriculture, labor and labor unions, business, and management.
2. Freeze all prices, produce, wages, rents, etc., as of a given date.
3. A 3 percent annual increase in prices not to exceed 3 percent in any one month.
4. A PRICE CONTROL CLAUSE— Permit a given business or individual to use last year's prices for increases this year; also, in the event there were no changes last year, they could use last year's prices. This would allow supply and demand to operate freely in the market and eliminate price increases which could be termed as "extraordinary" and be handled by a Board of Adjustments that would consider increases in hardship cases, etc.

Mr. President, I felt it was my duty as an American citizen to say something if it could be of some help.

I operate a frozen food business in Waveland, Mississippi and I see the prices increasing 30 percent and 40 percent. Something must be done!!! Also being a three-term elected official, serving the public is part of my life. May God Bless you in your efforts.

Sincerely yours,
John Longo, Jr.

- Absent or weak father
- Overprotective, overindulgent and domineering mother
- Strict standards of behavior and definition of limits

ANSWER—A Lou Harris poll commissioned by USA Today found that 38% of American homes have serious problems with alcohol abuse. Fifty-six percent of Americans have an abuser of alcohol who they describe as "close to me." In the last ten years, the number of Americans who know someone who has an alcohol problem has increased from 60 percent to 68 percent.

Over seven million children live in homes where alcohol is abused. Estimates indicate that half of these children will develop into alcoholics similar to their parents.

Correct answer—c.

New York Times education editor outlines 21st Century 'basic skills'

AMERICA'S SCHOOLS HAVE TURNED THE CORNER

America's schools appear to have turned the corner toward higher achievement, but the American public hasn't noticed yet, according to Fred Hechinger, former education editor of The New York Times.

"The public perception appears to lag behind the reality of recent substantial school improvements," wrote Hechinger, now president, The New York Times Company Foundation, in a recent issue of the Bulletin, a monthly journal published by the National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASPP).

"Reports from across the nation show a dramatic upturn of reading scores; the long decline in the Scholastic Aptitude Test scores has been halted and, in many places, reversed; competency testing of students as well as teachers has been widely accepted; the working habits and academic efforts of young people are on an upward curve, probably in part because of a less favorable job market."

Hechinger contended in his article that while education has been a cornerstone in the development of American society, some schools find themselves in a state of shock

"Public education is the engine that has driven American society toward its goal of freedom, equality, and prosperity," he reported. "It has made the pursuit of happiness possible for an ever-increasing number of Americans."

He points out that college enrollment has doubled in 15 years, that the percentage of Black students who graduate has more than doubled, and nearly 85 percent of America's youth graduate from high school.

"Despite this admirable record, the public schools currently find themselves beset by uncertainty, even crisis," he wrote. "They are in a state of shock. Instead of dealing with the problems of growth and expansion, they are forced to come to terms with decline and retrenchment."

Schools today are facing a decline in public confidence, a lack of financial support, a declining number of students, and a political turn toward conservatism.

Hechinger pointed out that the schools are not only in this "malaise of the spirit." It affects the entire nation as America realizes that its rich resources are not unlimited.

But the situation is changing, according to Hechinger.

"Despite more limited resources, the schools have begun to reform themselves," he writes.

"There is little doubt that the past three years have been marked by substantial improvements. The problem that still faces public education is that these improvements have not yet sunk into the public consciousness."

He called for a reaffirmation of the schools' dedication to teach basic skills and to define exactly what constitutes basic skills.

"The basic equipment for young people who will be required to move from this century into the next must include the capacity to function in an information society without being inundated by information; skills to communicate; the capacity to deal with changes brought about by science and technology; an understanding of issues of government, law, and justice; a concern for human rights and an understanding of other people and their cultures and languages; a comprehension of the economic and political and economic forces that affect their lives; and an appreciation of the vital artistic forces which give their lives meaning luster."

Keesler eyeing contract services

Eighty-eight Keesler military and civilian jobs are now under study for possible conversion to civilian contract in 1984, said Air Force officials.

Congressional policy is to have the Department of Defense use the least costly form of manpower consistent with military requirements and other needs of the department.

Keesler's 88 positions being considered for conversion stem from five areas: 18 military and 10 civilian audiovisual positions, 10 civilian grounds maintenance positions, 14 military hospital custodial services positions, 11 civilian industrial laundry positions and 21 civilian protective coating positions.

Those positions are among 2,243 Air Force wide and 357 at Air Training Command bases being considered for conversion in 1984.

For non-military essential workloads, comparative costs studies are used to determine the most effective use of funds, either in-house or contracting.

The use of contract services to perform non-military essential functions in the Air Force is determined on a case-by-case basis, officials said.

In the case of each study, in-service vs. contract cost will be compared, and bids solicited. Conversion to contract will take place if the results of the cost studies indicate it to be the most cost effective alternative.

Officials emphasized the sensitivity of the Air Force to the effect a contracting-out decision may have on employees. In most cases, there are policies for reassigning military members, and every effort is made to retain civilian employees.

Employees who can't be retained are given full employment assistance. Eligible employees may register for computerized referral programs and be given placement rights to vacancies in DOD where they are qualified, officials stated.

Eligible career employees also may be registered in the personnel management's Displaced Employee Program for referral and consideration by other federal departments and agencies.

Marketing specialist explores meat extenders

THE SEA COAST ECHO—THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1983-1D

By ANNO R. RUSHING
Extension Marketing
Specialist

Meat extenders are usually made of vegetable protein, most commonly soy. These products are added to ground and processed meat at varying levels by packers, processors, retailers and consumers for a variety of reasons, but mainly to make the end product less expensive.

Back in the early '70s, when a sudden rise in meat prices encouraged consumers to find ways of stretching their meat dollar, the use of meat extenders became common. This trend brought about less expensive products — and several problems as well. The vegetable protein industry didn't have the trained people to show the meat industry how to use its product. Also, a lot of the extending was being done at store level, with little or no control. Another problem was that some of the extender products may have been marketed too soon. The soy extenders are now greatly improved. Price increases themselves don't play a big part in the use of extenders — but sudden price increases do. Meat only gets a high price image when there's a sudden price jump. Consumers are not particularly interested in extenders.

There are other benefits to using extenders. Soy extenders help hold meat juices in, increasing the yield and palatability of the product. Soy extenders have many of the nutritional properties of meat, including a nearly equivalent level of protein. Soy contains approximately the same percentage of protein as lean meat — about 17 to 18 percent — although it is not a "complete" protein, being of plant origin and not animal. There are some potential problems with the use of meat extenders. Of considerable concern to the meat industry is the impact of extenders on consumer perception of meat products. If consumers have problems with the quality of the products, they may lay blame on meat and not on the mixture. Using too much extender can be a drawback for both the meat industry and the consumer. A maximum of 20 percent rehydrated soy product (without flavorings) should be added to meats to keep from diminishing the quality of the end product. Vegetable protein products alone, are bland. Most of the flavor is in the meat fat so when too much extender is used there may be a "taste monotony."

The nutritional aspects of meat extenders remains a never ending battle — too involved to discuss here. Extenders can complement the total meat market in making meat available to those who otherwise wouldn't be able to use it. They also can help use more of the meat animal — used with fat to produce an end product of greater value.

Studies have shown that when the cost of ground meat is lower, consumers will buy enough additional product to make up for the replacement. Products like hot dogs, luncheon meats and sausage use soy extenders to produce desired eating quality. Vegetable protein will never put the meat industry out of business. Consumers have shown that they want red meat products. They've also shown they want economy — as long as getting that economy doesn't take too much away from quality. With proper use and understanding by consumers, there can be benefits for the consumer and the meat industry as well.

State Medical Board suspends doctor's license

The Mississippi State Board of Medical Licensure has ordered Philadelphia physician Jasper M. Blount Jr., to stop treating arthritis patients by mail.

The order, issued July 25, suspends Blount's medical license for two years but stays the suspension provided he complies with a four-point plan within 30 days.

The order requires that Dr. Blount "cease issuing papers extolling the particular virtues of the expected results of his treatment for arthritis."

The Board said Blount could not "prescribe by mail or in person to a patient unless (he) conformed with traditional and ethical medical methods, including but not limited to the taking of a medical history and performing a physical examination and suitable laboratory procedures."

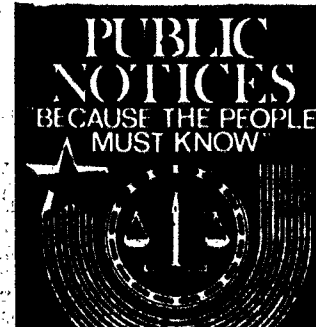

Evidence and testimony presented in hearings on May 19 and July 21 revealed that Blount had prescribed through the mail such drugs as Flayl, Deltasone, and Allopurinol — often without having patient observation, clinical examination, testing, or medical history.

The order further requires that Blount must "post conspicuously in his office a statement that the treatment he uses for arthritis is experimental and that there is no guarantee of any cure" and that he must "verbally inform each patient he treats for arthritis that the treatment he uses for arthritis is experimental and that there is no guarantee of any cure."

Additionally, Blount must reappear before the Board in July, 1984; if he fails to comply with any condition in the order, the Board can immediately lift his license to practice medicine.
